INFORMATION

NYSAC 2026 Legislative Conference

March 16-18, 2026

Crowne Plaza/Desmond. Albany

HOTEL

The NYSAC Legislative Conference draws more than 700 attendees each February, which means we provide both a host hotel and a list of nearby lodging options for your convenience. Please note that all meals and conference registration fees are separate from your hotel stay and must be purchased through the online registration system. Our host hotel, the Crowne Plaza Albany/Desmond, will sell out quickly, as it can only accommodate a portion of our attendees. If you choose to stay at an alternate hotel, please be aware that room rates vary and may be lower than the host hotel's rate. Parking at the Crowne Plaza is complimentary, and several high-quality hotels are located within a quarter-mile of the Desmond. All changes to your hotel reservation must be made directly with your selected hotel. NYSAC is not responsible for booking, modifying, or canceling hotel reservations. If you plan to request tax-exempt status, please remember to pro-

Book a room at an alternate hotel, close to the conference hotel.

When Work Doesn't Pay: Addressing the Benefit Cliff in NYS

This workshop examines the social services “benefit cliff” and its impact on New York State individuals and families striving for economic stability. Participants will explore how incremental income gains can lead to sudden losses in benefits, creating unintended barriers to self-sufficiency. The session will highlight policy considerations, data insights, and practical strategies counties can use to help residents transition smoothly toward long-term financial independence. Beyond the Code: Building Ethical Awareness and Confidence in County Government

Ethics training is most effective when it moves beyond compliance and becomes part of everyday county government culture. This workshop presents best practices for ethics training through a clear, step-by-step approach to building awareness and understanding of county codes of ethics, including who they apply to and where to seek guidance. Participants will learn practical strategies for making ethics relatable and accessible, reducing the discomfort often associated with ethical questions and dilemmas. Attendees will leave with actionable tools to foster open dialogue and strengthen ethical confidence across their organizations. \(Monday, March 16, 2026, 2:00pm-3:15pm\)

Building Effective County Wide EMS Plans: Tools, Challenges, and Best Practices

As EMS systems continue to evolve, counties are increasingly looking to countywide EMS plans to address service delivery challenges and long term sustainability. This workshop will provide an overview of what goes into a successful countywide EMS plan, including data assessment, stakeholder engagement, and implementation strategies. Attendees will hear how counties can use EMS planning to improve coordination, address coverage gaps, and strengthen system resilience. This session will focus on practical lessons learned and key considerations counties should keep in mind when developing or updating a countywide EMS plan. Professional Development Series: Avoiding Burnout: Recharging and Restarting

This highly interactive session strengthens personal resilience, team effectiveness, and organizational health by examining—and reversing—behaviors that drain them. Participants explore how competing priorities often lead to misdirected attention and are given practical tools for more effective task completion. The session also examines reactivity, highlighting how triggers undermine clarity and demonstrates techniques to re-engage the rational mind to preserve energy and focus. Finally, participants assess the strategies they use to manage professional stress, considering when adaptive strengths—such as high standards—can become maladaptive, and how their authentic dispositions intersect with the unique demands of public-sector work cultures. Your Leadership Voice: Developing Your Signature Tool Kit

County leaders are often in the spotlight, addressing constituents at a board meeting, explaining budget decisions, advocating for state policies, or rallying support for regional initiatives. In these high-stakes moments, having your core messages ready isn't just convenient—it's essential. This workshop helps you build your powerful Signature Remarks Toolkit to always have at the ready. It will include crafting your passion statement about why you serve, choosing your key remarks and memorable talking points. \(Monday, March 16, 2026, 3:45pm-5:00pm\)

Childcare Access in Action: Expanding Availability to Support Families and the Workforce

This session explores practical strategies counties can use to expand access to affordable, reliable childcare as a cornerstone of workforce stability and economic growth. Using Albany County as a case study, participants will learn about innovative programs that support childcare providers, incentivize new capacity, and reduce barriers for working families. The discussion will highlight cross-sector partnerships, funding approaches, and policy tools that have proven effective in increasing availability. Attendees will leave with transferable ideas and lessons learned that can be adapted to their own communities. \(Monday, March 16, 2026, 3:45pm-5:00pm\)

Evaluating AI with a County Purpose: Through Data, Trust, and Innovation

Join us for the workshop “Evaluating AI with Purpose: Building County Resilience Through Data, Trust, and Innovation,” inspired by insights from NYSAC’s AI Working Group. This session will explore how counties can thoughtfully assess and implement artificial intelligence solutions that align with local priorities, foster public trust, and drive meaningful innovation. Learn practical strategies for vetting AI solutions and exploring how other counties are leveraging AI to support decision making, improve operations and augment services to residents. From Crisis to Care: Improving Mental Health Crisis Response

Counties across New York are working to strengthen behavioral health crisis response systems by improving coordination among local governments, public safety, healthcare, and community providers. These efforts are focused on addressing long-standing gaps such as fragmented services, limited response options, and overreliance on law enforcement and emergency rooms. With the goal of ensuring people in crisis receive timely, appropriate care, counties are using data, cross-sector leadership, and best practices to redesign how crises are identified, responded to, and stabilized. Participants will learn how to build more effective, person-centered crisis response systems that improve outcomes for individuals, first responders, and communities. Navigating Conflict: Promoting Well-Being, Civility and Consensus

County leaders regularly engage with colleagues, elected officials, and constituents who hold differing, often strongly held, viewpoints. Because such disagreement is integral to public service, leaders who aspire to confidently navigate conflicting opinions and difficult conversations must be equipped with practical and efficient tools. Drawing upon principles of negotiation, neuroscience and mediation, this session demonstrates ways to avoid escalation, minimize conflict, remove impasses and resolve disputes. Additionally, participants will analyze and practice strategies through the lens of realistic county scenarios and plan to apply them in ways that promote individual well-being, collective civility and broader consensus. Medicaid Updates Unpacked: Understanding Federal Changes

This workshop provides a clear, practical overview of recent and upcoming federal Medicaid changes and what they mean for states, providers, and communities. Participants will explore key policy shifts, timelines, and areas of uncertainty, with an emphasis on real-world impacts. The session will also highlight strategies for staying compliant and adapting programs in a changing federal landscape. Attendees will leave with a stronger foundation for understanding and responding to Medicaid policy updates. \(Tuesday, March 17, 2026, 2:00pm-3:15pm\)

Raise the Age and the Evolving Youth Services Landscape: Mental Health and Housing Impacts

This workshop examines the implementation of New York's Raise the Age law and its significant effects on county youth service systems. Participants will explore how shifting responsibilities have increased demand for mental health services and developmentally appropriate housing for Justice-Involved Youth (JD) and Persons In Need of Supervision (PINS). The session highlights challenges counties face in capacity, funding, and coordination across systems. Attendees will also discuss promising practices and strategies to better meet the complex needs of these youth under Raise the Age. \(Tuesday, March 17, 2026, 2:00pm-3:15pm\)

Controlling Healthcare Costs Without Cutting Benefits: A New Primary Care Model for Public Employers

Rising healthcare costs threatens the long-term financial stability of public sector employers, with many facing double-digit increases in 2026. County leaders face a pressing challenge: how to rein in costs without cutting benefits or harming workforce morale. Maine-Endwell and Owego Apalachin School Districts in New York's Southern Tier are taking a proactive approach by bringing advanced primary care directly to teachers, staff, and families. This model offers low- or no-cost preventive, relationship-based primary care, behavioral health support, and occupational health services. The result is healthier employees, fewer high-cost claims, reduced emergency and urgent care use, and a more sustainable benefits strategy. Join Superintendents Jason Van Fossen and Corey Green as they discuss why they chose a new approach, how they launched dedicated health centers, early outcomes, and their vision for the future.
