Breaking Down Silos:

County Innovation Through Cross-Department Collaboration

Counties are increasingly confronting challenges—like behavioral health, housing, and immigration—that cut across departmental lines. This panel will bring together NYSAC committee chairs and co-chairs to discuss the value of cross-systems collaboration. Participants will share insights on how departments can work together to improve outcomes, streamline services, and develop practical strategies for more coordinated solutions to complex community needs. \(September 8, 2:00pm-3:15pm\)

State Policy, Local Impact: Navigating Environmental Policy Changes

New York State's push toward climate and conservation goals is creating new responsibilities—and challenges—for counties. This workshop will examine two environmental policy areas: the growing solar panel waste stream and the expanded regulatory reach of state wetlands protections. Learn how Niagara County passed a first-of-its-kind local law to address the growing waste stream from solar installations and hear how DEC's updated wetlands regulations are affecting planning and permitting across the state. This session will explore how counties are navigating these emerging challenges and leading with innovative responses. \(September 8, 2:00pm-3:15pm\)

Federal Policy on the Move: What Counties Need to Know Now

Major federal reforms are underway, and counties cannot afford to be caught off guard. Join national experts from the National Association of Counties (NACo), along with state and county leaders, for a high-level roundtable on the most pressing federal policy issues impacting New York counties. From funding changes to regulatory shifts, this interactive session will offer timely insights, analysis, and opportunities for audience discussion on how to prepare for what is ahead. \(September 8, 2:00pm-3:15pm\)

Innovative Procurement Strategies Local Leaders Should Know

New procurement tools and partnerships are empowering counties to enhance efficiency, transparency, and cost-effectiveness. This workshop is designed to provide the latest insights and practical approaches to helpful public procurement practices that are streamlining purchasing processes, strengthening accountability, and fostering collaboration across counties. Attendees will hear from NYSAC partners working to help counties save time and money, while meeting all state procurement requirements. \(September 8, 2:00pm-3:15pm\)

WORKSHOP TOPICS

FOIL and Open Meetings Law: Navigating Transparency in the Digital Age

Government transparency is essential—but compliance with the Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) and the Open Meetings Law is becoming more complex, especially in an era shaped by artificial intelligence and automated data requests. This session will address recent changes, persistent challenges, and evolving best practices for managing requests efficiently and lawfully. A panel of legal and municipal experts will share strategies for upholding open government principles while avoiding unnecessary burdens on county resources. Learn when and how you can legally narrow or deny excessive or inappropriate requests. (September 8, 3:45pm-5:00pm)

Building Tomorrow's Workforce:

SUNY's Solutions for County Workforce Challenges

As both county governments and local businesses grapple with workforce shortages in essential services and high-demand fields, SUNY is creating pathways to connect students and adult learners with employment opportunities. This workshop explores key initiatives to build sustainable talent pipelines for both public and private sector needs. A key focus will be the new SUNY Reconnect program, which will offer free community college for adults ages 25-55 in fields including healthcare, cybersecurity, renewable energy, and advanced manufacturing beginning in Fall 2025. (September 8, 3:45pm-5:00pm)

Beyond Shelter: County Solutions to Homelessness

Homelessness has become a more prominent issue for counties and the reasons for it vary regionally. Historically, a county's primary role in homelessness has been related to emergency shelter for families and individuals with a goal of attaining stability and permanent housing. As the scope of homelessness has risen the county role has extended beyond basic shelter. Hear from counties that are pursuing different models for addressing homelessness including building affordable housing, expanding shelter capacity, and leveraging private and not-for-profit partnerships. (September 8, 3:45pm-5:00pm)

Foundations of County Government in New York State

This session offers a comprehensive overview of the historical, legal, and structural foundations of county government in New York State. Participants will gain insight into the different forms and organizational models of county governments, the scope of their authority and responsibilities under state law, and their intergovernmental relationships—with the state, municipalities, and regional entities. Whether you are new to county government or looking for a refresher, this session will ground you in the essential principles shaping local governance today. (September 8, 3:45pm-5:00pm)

9/11 Survivor, Physician
Speaker

Just an American: Finding Strength and Resilience Post 9/11

Dr. Gregory Huie is a September 11th survivor whose compelling story and powerful message have inspired audiences across the nation. As a firsthand witness to one of the most defining moments in American history, Dr. Huie brings a unique perspective on resilience, healing, and the enduring human spirit. His journey from surviving the attacks to becoming a voice for remembrance and hope is both moving and motivational. We are honored to welcome Dr. Huie as he shares his experiences and reflections, reminding us of the strength that can arise from tragedy.

WORKSHOP TOPICS

The Power of Active Listening: A Key to Meaningful Communication

Truly hearing others—making them feel seen, understood, and valued—is more difficult than it seems. Too often, we unintentionally shift the focus of conversations onto ourselves, missing crucial opportunities to connect. Many of our poor listening habits are automatic, shaped by deep-rooted behaviors and cultural influences. This interactive session offers evidence-based strategies to help participants become more intentional, empathetic listeners. By embracing these best practices, you will strengthen your communication, build deeper relationships, boost collaboration, and enhance productivity in both personal and professional settings.

(September 8, 3:45pm-5:00pm)

County Airports as Engines of Regional Economic Growth

County-owned and operated airports are more than just transportation hubs—they are powerful tools for economic development and regional connectivity. This workshop will explore the strategic value of local airports and how they can drive sustainable growth. Through real-world case studies, participants will learn about successful airport investment and development projects, available funding sources, and how to measure the broader economic impacts. Discover how your county can unlock new opportunities through its aviation assets. (September 9, 10:45am-12:00pm)

Effective County Administration: Governance, Roles, and Best Practices

Effective administration is the foundation of a well-functioning, responsive, and resilient county government. This workshop delves into the key principles and practices that drive excellence in county management. Attendees will gain actionable insights on fostering proper governance, building strong board-staff relations, and clearly identifying roles and responsibilities within the organization. Whether you are an elected official, a county administrator/manager, or a government professional, this workshop will equip you with the tools and strategies to navigate complex challenges, align organizational goals, and lead with integrity and purpose. Join us to strengthen your understanding of the fundamental principles that make counties thrive. (September 9, 10:45am-12:00pm)

The Economics of Prevention: Rural Public Health's Value Proposition

Rural local health departments play a vital yet often underrecognized role in fostering community well-being and economic resilience. This session will explore the essential public health functions these departments perform—from safeguarding food safety and controlling infectious disease outbreaks to reducing environmental health risks from lead exposure—and highlight how these foundational services not only protect public health but also drive local economic growth, sustainability, and workforce stability. Attendees will gain strategies for framing public health initiatives in economic terms and effectively communicating their return on investment to stakeholders, policymakers, and community leaders. \(September 9, 10:45am-12:00pm\)

Building Your County Brand: Tools for Helping Communities Understand What Counties Do

County governments are often the backbone of essential services—yet many residents remain unaware of what counties actually do. This workshop explores how elected and appointed officials can strengthen public understanding and trust through strategic branding and compelling storytelling.

\(September 9, 10:45am-12:00pm\)

Implementing New York's Short-Term Rental Law at the County Level

Join us for an in-depth workshop exploring the implementation of New York State's newly enacted short-term rental legislation. This session will break down the key components of the new law, including registration requirements, platform responsibilities, and enforcement mechanisms. We will examine the law's objectives—such as preserving housing affordability and enhancing neighborhood stability—while addressing the practical implications and challenges facing counties. County officials, including staff implementing the new law will provide attendees with examples of how their counties are tackling this new opportunity. \(September 9, 10:45am-12:00pm\)

Robert's Rules in Action: Running Fair, Focused, and Respectful Public Meetings

Effective public meetings require structure, fairness, and civility—qualities that Robert's Rules of Order helps establish. This session will provide a practical guide to using parliamentary procedure to manage public discussions, maintain order, and ensure every voice is heard. You'll learn how to use these rules to communicate your goals clearly, stay on track, and build consensus among both elected officials and the public. Whether you're new to Robert's Rules or looking to sharpen your skills, this workshop will help you create more productive and balanced meetings.

\(September 9, 2:00pm-3:15pm\)

The HEART of Effective Communication for Leadership

Navigating difficult conversations and maintaining professional communication can be one of the most challenging aspects of county leadership. This workshop introduces the HEART model—a simple, five-step process to help organize your thoughts and tackle tough conversations. Participants will learn practical communication strategies to lead with confidence and foster positive working relationships throughout their organizations. \(September 9, 2:00pm-3:15pm\)

Ready for Anything: Strengthening County Preparedness for Natural Disasters

New York counties are experiencing an increase in natural disasters—from extreme storms and floods to wildfires and heat waves—driven by a changing climate. With growing uncertainty around federal disaster aid, local governments must take proactive steps to build resilience. This session will explore how counties can strengthen preparedness through comprehensive planning, interagency coordination, and smart resource allocation. Learn how to align local emergency plans with state and federal systems to better protect your communities before, during, and after disasters. (September 9, 2:00pm-3:15pm)

Medicaid: How Did We Get Here and Why It is Important to Counties

Medicaid has become the largest expenditure in the New York State budget. It is also a huge cost and administrative function in county budgets. The program is a core part of health care delivery across the state with 45 percent of the population receiving their health coverage from Medicaid or the Affordable Care Act. This session will shed light on why counties are between a rock and a hard place as Congress seeks to reform the cost structure of Medicaid. (September 9, 2:00pm-3:15pm)

The Challenges of Transmission Interconnections in NYS

This workshop will delve into the complex challenges associated with transmission interconnections in New York State. Key issues include regulatory hurdles, the integration of renewable energy sources, the aging infrastructure, and a lack of enough electricity. Participants will explore innovative solutions and strategies to support economic development and enhance grid reliability and efficiency in the era of energy transition. (September 9, 2:00pm-3:15pm)

Spies, Espionage, and Cyber Threat Actors: How Counties Can Protect Themselves

County leaders are increasingly becoming targets of foreign malign influence campaigns and cyber-attacks from nation state actors. With regulations tightening at the federal level, threat actors are now seeking access to local government leaders and their communities. Recognizing the tradecraft behind foreign malign operations directed at local governments and understanding the role cyber threat actors play in gaining access to government networks and sensitive information is critical for all county leaders. This presentation from the NYS Division of Homeland Security of Emergency Services Office of Counter Terrorism will provide critical information on the tactics and techniques used by foreign adversaries; lessons learned from espionage cases influence operations, and cyber breaches directed at local governments; and what you can do to protect yourself.
